The final instalment in the archetype epic...

A Dynamic Model of Human Relating:

Type theory and Beebe's archetypal model in relation to communication, conflict and stress.

A workshop presented by Andrew Gibson ISFP

We've looked at Beebe's model, but so what? In this session we will look at it in terms of the dynamics of interactions between types. This experience highlights the complexity of human interactions and adds new life to Jung's insightful Psychological Types and the wonderful MBTI.

The session will consist of:

- a) A viewing of a short extract from The West Wing of a confrontation between President Jed Bartlett (INTJ) and Toby Ziegler (INTP).
- b) A review of theory available from Communication Preferences, Conflict Approaches, Stress, Temperament Theory, Interaction Styles and John Beebe's Archetypal model (to be forwarded to participants).
- c) A review of a dynamic model involving the elements outlined in b)
- d) A re-viewing of The West Wing confrontation in the framework of the dynamic model.
